

CITY RELOCATION GUIDE • AUSTRALIA

Hobart

Where you would work, where you would live, and what an ordinary week looks like in Hobart.

Ethicare Resourcing

9 chapters • September 2026

ethicareresourcing.com

What's inside

01 Welcome to Hobart

02 Why Hobart

03 Hobart at a glance

04 Healthcare in Hobart

05 Where clinicians live

06 Getting around

07 Cost of living

08 Food & the everyday

09 The mountain, the coast & the seasons

This guide is free, and so is everything in it. Every chapter here is also on the website, where it is kept up to date — so if you are reading this some months after downloading it, check the site for anything that looks time-sensitive. Fees, tax rates and immigration settings change without much notice.

We don't print these. A PDF costs nothing to send and nothing to ship, which felt like the right answer for a company that spends its days moving people around the world.

Welcome to Hobart

Hobart Guide · Chapter 1 of 9

Hobart is Australia's most deliberate capital. Nobody drifts to the bottom of an island 240 kilometres off the mainland coast — you choose it, for a mountain that stands over the wards, a harbour that still works for a living, and a health system small enough to know your name.

A city between the mountain and the harbour

Around 250,000 people live in Greater Hobart, folded between the Derwent estuary and kunanyi / Mount Wellington, whose 1,271-metre summit stands snow-dusted above the office blocks fifteen minutes from town. Founded in 1804, it is Australia's second-oldest capital after Sydney, and it still runs at that scale — a working harbour city with a fishing fleet, a Saturday market three centuries in the making, and a museum that reshaped how the mainland sees it.

Tasmania runs a single statewide health service, and Hobart carries its depth: the principal referral hospital, the widest range of specialist services on the island — including cardiothoracic surgery, neurosurgery and burns — and the university medical school. It is a system you can know personally within a year, which cuts both ways, and this guide is honest about that.

The honest costs are a genuinely tight rental market, older housing that wasn't always built for a cold winter, and the fact that everything — goods, holidays, family visits — crosses Bass Strait. What you get back is proximity: the mountain, the wilderness and the coast are minutes from the wards, not hours.

Who wrote this

We're a healthcare recruitment company, so we have an interest — but this guide isn't a pitch. There's nothing in it asking you to register, no form, and no visa advice.

Hobart is the move people romanticise most and research least. This guide takes the winter, the market size and the island logistics as seriously as the scenery — because the clinicians who thrive here knew exactly what they were choosing.

The city, in nine numbers

~250,000

People in Greater Hobart — the widest job market on the island, and the state's referral centre.

1804

Founded the same year as the colony itself — Australia's second-oldest capital city, after Sydney.

1,271 m

kunanyi / Mount Wellington, rising straight out of the city — snow on top, wards at its feet, fifteen minutes apart.

1

Statewide health service — Hobart carries the principal referral hospital and the widest range of roles.

~40%

Of Tasmania is national park and reserve, including a World Heritage wilderness within a few hours' drive.

1972

The year Salamanca Market began. It still fills the sandstone waterfront every Saturday.

2011

MONA opened and, more or less single-handedly, changed how the rest of the country sees Hobart.

UTC+10

Same clock as Melbourne and Sydney, daylight saving included — island life, mainland time.

100%

Of Tasmania, Hobart included, is classed as regional for skilled migration.

Six things you only learn once you're here

The cold lives indoors

Winter is honest — and older weatherboard homes are draughty. Ask how a house is heated before you sign anything, and budget for warm bedding in month one.

The UV doesn't match the air

Cool air, fierce sun. The UV here burns fast even when you need a jumper — sun protection is a year-round habit, not a summer one.

You'll want a car

Buses cover the main corridors; everything else wants a car. The ferry from Geelong is the easy way to bring one over.

It's a two-degrees city

Everyone knows everyone, faster than you expect. You'll have a community in a month — and a reputation just as quickly.

Winter is embraced, not endured

Hobart leans into the dark: Dark Mofo fills June with fire, art and feasting, and the log-fire pub is a genre of its own.

The wilderness is close and serious

Namadgi-scale wilderness sits an hour or two out, and mobile coverage drops fast beyond the towns. Tell someone your plans on a longer walk.

A note on Country

Hobart stands on the Country of the muwinina people – nipaluna – and today's Tasmanian Aboriginal community, the palawa/pakana, carries one of the oldest living cultures on earth. Dual names are official and warmly used: nipaluna (Hobart), kunanyi (Mount Wellington), kanamaluka (the Tamar).

Acknowledgement of Country opens meetings, and health services work in partnership with Aboriginal community-controlled organisations. Learn the names early – using them well is noticed and appreciated.

How to read this guide

Nine chapters, all about Hobart specifically. Topics true across the island – Launceston, the north-west coast, the wine and wilderness regions beyond a weekend's reach – sit in the Tasmania guide. Anything true of Australia generally – Medicare, visas, Ahpra registration, tax, superannuation, schools – lives once in Moving to Australia.

If you read nothing else, read Why Hobart for the full case – and what we'd ask you to weigh, and Where clinicians live, because Hobart's villages are a enjoyable decision rather than a stressful one.

Why Hobart

Hobart Guide · Chapter 2 of 9

Hobart's photographs undersell the practical case: a walkable harbour city, serious medicine, and wilderness twenty minutes from the ward. Here is what the city gives a working clinician, what a week here plausibly looks like — and when the mainland is the better call.

What the city gives back

Start with the working life. Tasmania's single statewide service means Hobart careers run broad rather than narrow: you see more, carry more, and are known by name in a way the big-city systems can't manage. Smaller systems tend to look after the people they recruit — relocation help, genuine welcomes, rosters negotiated with a human — because every arrival matters. Pay follows Tasmanian enterprise agreements in the national range; we quote no figures here and will always walk you through the current agreement instead.

Then the life around the work. Housing costs less than the mainland capitals, even with a tight rental market. Commutes are short everywhere. And the city's real currency is proximity: the mountain fifteen minutes from the wards, the wilderness an hour or two out, the harbour at the end of the street. The whole of Tasmania, Hobart included, is classed as regional for skilled migration, which can open extra visa pathways and points.

15min

Hobart's wards to the mountain road

1

Statewide health service, not several competing networks

100%

Of Tasmania counts as regional for migration

A typical week

A week here can plausibly hold all of this. A shift that starts without traffic, because nowhere in Hobart is far from anywhere else. An after-work walk on kunanyi's foothill tracks, or a swim at Kingston Beach in the long summer light. Salamanca Market on Saturday morning — produce, makers and half the people you know — then a drive up the Coal River for a cellar-door lunch. Sunday on the Tasman Peninsula under sea cliffs, home by dark.

In winter the same week bends rather than breaks: snow on the mountain over breakfast, a log fire in a pub that has kept one burning for a century, and June given over to Dark Mofo's fires and feasts. People here don't wait out the seasons. They use them.

Sophie's insight

What I love about Hobart is how deliberately people make time for life — a walk up kunanyi, a market on Saturday, a weekend in the wilderness. And in a smaller, close-knit system, you're valued and looked after in a way the big cities can't match.

My advice: choose the city on purpose. The clinicians who come for the life it actually offers — seasons included — are among the happiest placements I have anywhere.

Sophie Careem Founder & CEO, Ethicare Resourcing

When the mainland is the better call

The market is the country's smallest

One principal referral centre. A narrow sub-specialty, a very specific career ladder or a two-clinician household may simply need a bigger system.

Winter is real, and so are the houses

Cold, dark-by-five winters in a housing stock that can be draughty. If low light flattens you, take that seriously — June here is embraced, but it is still June.

Everything crosses the Strait

Goods, holidays and family visits all mean a flight or a ferry. If your people are in Sydney or overseas, every reunion is a fare — budget it, emotionally too.

It's quiet

Hobart is a small city with a superb food scene, not a metropolis. If big-city churn recharges you, Melbourne is the honest answer — and it's 75 minutes away.

Rentals are tight

A small market with strong demand: good homes go fast. Arrive with your paperwork ready.

Where we'd steer you instead

If you need scale — sub-specialty depth, two careers, big-system progression — Sydney or Melbourne carry more sites.

If the dream is warmth rather than wilderness, Brisbane is the honest answer — Hobart's winter is the opposite promise.

If you want lifestyle-for-money in a bigger market, Adelaide is the closest mainland cousin.

In our experience

Hobart suits clinicians who've realised the thing they want most is scale — a city you can hold in your head, wilderness twenty minutes out, seasons that mean something. The bench is smaller than the mainland's; the life around it is the argument.

Hobart at a glance

Hobart Guide · Chapter 3 of 9

Before the practical chapters, orientation. Hobart reads simply once you have the shape of it: a harbour city folded around the Derwent, a mountain standing directly over it, and two shores linked by one bridge.

How the city is laid out

The mountain and the harbour

kunanyi / Mount Wellington rises straight out of the city to 1,271 metres, close enough that its summit road is a fifteen-minute drive from the CBD and its weather is the local forecast. Below it, Sullivans Cove and the working docks around Constitution Dock and Salamanca Place still land fish and fill restaurants, a rare thing among Australian state capitals.

The two shores

The Tasman Bridge is the hinge of the city: the western shore holds the CBD, the university and most of the inner suburbs; the eastern shore — Bellerive, Lindisfarne, Rosny — is ten minutes over the bridge, with water views, morning sun and better value.

South and beyond

South of the centre, Kingston and Blackmans Bay hold the family-beach suburbs; further on, the Huon Valley opens into orchards and river towns. North up the Derwent, New Town and Glenorchy carry the more affordable corridor. Where clinicians live covers all of it properly.

Where Hobart sits, with the straight-line distance to Launceston

A year in the weather

Cool temperate, with four real seasons — closer to England or the South Island of New Zealand than to mainland Australia. Summers are mild and long-lit, with evenings that stay cool; winters are cold, crisp and often blue-skied, with snow settling on kunanyi's summit. The weather changes fast in any month: layers and a good jacket are year-round equipment, and the UV is fierce despite the cool air.

Summer Dec – Feb 17–23° Mild · light till late
Autumn Mar – May 12–18° Still, gold, clear
Winter Jun – Aug 4–12° Cold · snow on the summit
Spring Sep – Nov 11–17° Fresh, blustery, green

Two practical notes, both about winter. Ask how any home is heated before you sign — a heat pump and decent curtains change the season entirely. And if you'll drive the mountain road in winter, learn the black-ice habits early; locals will teach you cheerfully.

Getting in and out

Hobart Airport sits about twenty minutes from the CBD, with direct flights to Melbourne (about 75 minutes), Sydney, Brisbane and beyond. If you're bringing a car or a household across Bass Strait on the Spirit of Tasmania, note that it docks at Devonport, on the north-west coast — a further three hours' drive south to Hobart, which is worth building into an arrival plan.

Words you'll hear in week one nipalunaHobart, in palawa kani — dual naming is official and widely used kunanyiMount Wellington — “the mountain”, and the city's weather forecast in one glance

SalamancaHobart's sandstone waterfront row — and the Saturday market that fills it
Sullivans CoveThe original harbour and working waterfront the whole city grew around
MONAThe Museum of Old and New Art — reached by ferry, credited with reshaping the city's identity
The SpiritThe Spirit of Tasmania ferry — how cars, furniture and grandparents cross Bass Strait, docking at Devonport
The mainlandEverywhere else in Australia. Said with affection, mostly

Scallop pieThe island's signature bakery order – curried, contested, compulsory once

Healthcare in Hobart

Hobart Guide · Chapter 4 of 9

Registration is national; hiring across Tasmania is statewide. Hobart's distinguishing feature is depth: it carries the principal referral hospital for the whole island, and the widest range of roles you'll find in the state.

How the system works from Hobart

Tasmania runs public health as one statewide service rather than splitting the island into competing networks — genuinely one system. Hobart's principal hospital holds the state's specialist and tertiary services, including cardiothoracic surgery, neurosurgery and burns, and the university's medical school shares the city with it, alongside a nursing and allied-health teaching presence. Private and not-for-profit hospitals sit alongside the public campus, and Aboriginal community-controlled health organisations operate in partnership across the system.

A university on the doorstep

The medical school sits alongside the principal hospital, with joint clinical and academic appointments more available than the city's size suggests.

One national register

Ahpra registration works everywhere in Australia. The process, English evidence and assessment pathways live once in Eligibility & registration.

Tasmania hires as a single statewide service, which makes the geography a career feature rather than an obstacle: a move between these is an internal move, not a new employer.

Hobart — the depth

The principal referral hospital for the whole island, holding the state's specialist and tertiary services, with the medical school beside it · the widest range of roles in Tasmania

The north

A substantial regional service with its own teaching presence and a broad generalist caseload · a common route in, and a short internal step to or from the capital

The north-west

The smallest of the three and the most generalist · where scope is widest, incentives for hard-to-fill posts are most likely, and housing costs least

Because it is one service, seniority and relationships carry across the island with you — which is why clinicians here often build a career across two of these three rather than one.

What a small system means for a career

Breadth, mostly. Hobart clinicians see a wider case mix and carry more responsibility earlier than big-city equivalents — generalist skills are prized, and the referral role from across the island keeps the caseload genuinely varied. The flipside is honest: some narrow sub-specialties are referred to Melbourne, and a very specific career ladder may need a bigger system. Why Hobart weighs that trade properly.

The social texture matters too. In a system this size you are known — by name, quickly — and the service tends to look after the people it goes to the trouble of recruiting from overseas: relocation support is common, and incentives exist for hard-to-fill posts. The detail on visas lives in Visas & the move.

“

One register, one statewide service, and the island's deepest bench. Small is the feature, not the bug. The one-line version

What to ask at interview

Salary packaging – public-health roles can package part of your pay pre-tax; ask how much and how to start it on day one

The roster reality – shift patterns, penalties, on-call frequency, and how gaps are covered in a small team

Scope and supervision – what you'll actually carry, and the support around it, especially in your first year

CPD – funded time and money, and whether mainland conference travel is covered (it matters more from an island)

Public, private or both – what rights of private practice exist in your profession here

Parking and commute at your shift times – short everywhere, but confirm the site

Professional indemnity – what the employer covers and what remains yours to hold

Two things to do early

Start registration the moment Hobart is on your shortlist – in a small system, start dates move at the speed of your paperwork. And once you land, sort ambulance cover: it isn't automatic in Tasmania, and adding it to health insurance is cheap insurance against a very expensive ride.

Where clinicians live

Hobart Guide · Chapter 5 of 9

On an island where nothing is far from anything, this decision is less about commute than about which Hobart you want: the harbour village, the eastern shore, the beach south or the valley. Here is the map as we'd draw it over coffee.

ON THE MAP

— THE INNER VILLAGES

- | | |
|-----------------|----------------|
| 1 Battery Point | 2 Sandy Bay |
| 3 West Hobart | 4 North Hobart |

— THE EASTERN SHORE

- | | |
|-------------|---------------|
| 5 Bellerive | 6 Lindisfarne |
| 7 Rosny | |

— THE BEACH SOUTH & THE HUON

- | | |
|--------------|-----------------|
| 8 Kingston | 9 Blackmans Bay |
| 10 Huonville | 11 Franklin |
| 12 Cygnet | |

— NEW TOWN & GLENORCHY

- | | |
|-------------|--------------|
| 13 New Town | 14 Glenorchy |
|-------------|--------------|

● Parks & nature ● Beaches ● Landmarks

Shaded areas are the suburbs named in this chapter. Arrows point to places beyond the map edge, with the straight-line distance from the city centre.

Suburb boundaries © Geoscape Australia, CC BY 4.0 · Natural Earth

The inner villages

Battery Point and Sandy Bay hold the postcard — Georgian cottages, the yacht clubs, the university — at the postcard's prices. West Hobart and New Town trade a little polish for weatherboard character and mountain views; North Hobart adds the city's best eating strip. All of it is close to the principal hospital; in Hobart the commute is rarely the deciding factor.

Inner Hobart, up close. The housing stock is old, small and mostly intact

Battery Point — the postcard, at the postcard's prices

The eastern shore

Across the Tasman Bridge, Bellerive, Lindisfarne and Rosny give water views, morning sun and noticeably better value, ten minutes from town. It is the value trade-off most locals make first, and the bridge is the only real cost of it — check the crossing at your actual shift times.

The beach south and the Huon

Kingston and Blackmans Bay are the family-beach suburbs, twenty minutes south of the wards with surf-lifesaving clubs and newer housing. Keep driving and the Huon Valley opens out — Huonville, Franklin, Cygnet — orchards, artists and river mist, thirty to forty-five minutes from Hobart and beloved of clinicians who want acreage and a wood fire. The trade is the drive, and in winter you'll make it in the dark both ways.

New Town and Glenorchy

North up the Derwent, New Town keeps its own village high street and mountain views at a gentler price than the inner south; Glenorchy, further out, is the most affordable corridor with its own shopping and services. Both keep you inside the city's bus network.

The honest comparison

~A$550/wk

Indicative Hobart house rent (3-bed median)

4 wks

Typical bond, lodged with the Rental Deposit Authority

10min

The eastern shore to the CBD, via the bridge

If you want...	Consider	Because
The widest job market, walkable	Battery Point, Sandy Bay, West Hobart	Minutes from the principal hospital
Water views on a budget	The eastern shore	Ten minutes over the bridge, morning sun
Beach family life	Kingston & Blackmans Bay	Surf clubs, newer homes, 20 min south
Acreage and orchards	The Huon Valley	River-valley life, 30–45 min out
Value, still in the city	New Town & Glenorchy	Gentler prices, own high streets, bus-served

Renting itself — applications, bonds, rights — works the same across Australia and lives once in Living in Australia. One Hobart habit worth copying: arrive with references, proof of income and your offer letter as clean PDFs, because this market rewards the instant, complete application.

Before you sign a lease

How is it heated — heat pump, wood, or hope? This is the question in Hobart.

Is the property inside the school catchment you need? Boundaries run street by street.

What's the commute at your shift times — including the bridge, if you're eastern shore?

Would a short-term rental first be wiser? Most people re-choose their suburb once they know the city.

Getting around

Hobart Guide · Chapter 6 of 9

Hobart's transport truth fits in a sentence: it is a car city with the shortest commutes in the country. The buses are light, there are no trains, and one bridge and one small ferry do most of the structural work.

The network, in four parts

Metro buses

Hobart runs a bus network on the tap-on Greencard. Fine for main corridors and the commute if you live on one; light on evenings and weekends.

The Tasman Bridge

The hinge of the city — the eastern shore's only quick link to the CBD and the hospitals. Check it at your actual shift times.

The intercity cycleway

A flat, off-road path along the Derwent to the northern suburbs — one of the pleasanter hospital commutes going.

The Bruny ferry

A small car ferry from Kettering, twenty minutes south, links Hobart to Bruny Island — a real day-trip commute for the very few who live there.

Car-free life is realistic in the inner villages and along the bus corridors if you pick your street carefully.

Everywhere else — the eastern shore in a hurry, the beach south at shift hours, the Huon — plan on driving from day one.

Driving here

Australians drive on the left, and Hobart is a gentle place to learn a new country's roads: light traffic, short distances, and scenery that makes every errand a minor holiday. You can usually drive on a valid overseas licence for a period, then transfer to a Tasmanian licence once resident — the rules, and buying a car, live in Living in Australia.

Two local skills. Winter mornings bring black ice on the mountain road up kunanyi — slow early, brake gently, and take the locals' advice on cold mornings. And wildlife moves at dawn and dusk on the edges of town, so drives at those hours ask for real attention.

Distances that actually matter

From the CBD to...	Roughly	How
The eastern shore (Bellerive)	~10 min	Drive or bus, via the bridge
Hobart Airport	~20 min	Drive or bus
Kingston / the beach south	~20 min	Drive
Bruny Island (via Kettering)	~45 min + ferry	Drive, then the car ferry
The Huon Valley	30–45 min	Drive
Mount Field & Russell Falls	~1 hr	Drive
Port Arthur / Tasman Peninsula	~1.5 hrs	Drive
Launceston	2.5 hrs	Drive
Melbourne, by air	~75 min	Flight from Hobart Airport

The Spirit of Tasmania deserves its own line: it carries your car, your furniture and the family dog across Bass Strait, and for most relocating households it is the move itself – but it docks at Devonport, three hours north, not Hobart. Book the crossing early in summer and build the drive south into arrival day.

The takeaway

Budget for a reliable car before you budget for anything else, pick your suburb for heating and school catchment rather than commute – the commute will be short regardless – and check the bridge crossing time if you're eyeing the eastern shore.

Cost of living

Hobart Guide · Chapter 7 of 9

Hobart costs less than the mainland capitals and more than the postcard suggests. The honest audit: day-to-day life is gentle on the wallet, the rental market is tight, and the two lines newcomers underestimate are heating and the car.

Why there are no prices on this page

We used to print a weekly rent and a monthly budget table here. We have taken them out. A figure that was true when a page was written is misleading a year later, and a candidate who plans a move around a stale number is worse off than one who plans around none.

What does not go stale is the shape of a month, and the judgement about which lines will surprise you — which is what the rest of this chapter is for. For today's actual numbers use the calculators at the foot of the page, and use them to compare Hobart against the city you are leaving. That is the only comparison that decides anything.

The headline

The structural truth holds: like-for-like housing runs well below Sydney and Melbourne, and it is housing that decides whether a salary feels big.

What everyday life costs

GENTLE DAY TO DAY, TIGHT ON HOUSING

The proportions, for one person on a mid-range budget. Proportions move slowly; prices move every quarter. Rent is fifty-five per cent of the month – less than the mainland capitals, more than the postcard suggests.

Two lines here are the ones newcomers underestimate: heating, because winter is real and much of the housing stock is old, and the car you will definitely own. Make a good heat pump a search criterion – it can halve the season’s cost.

The costs the postcard hides

Heating

Winter is real and much of the housing stock is old. A home with a good heat pump can halve the season’s cost – make heating a search criterion, and budget honestly for your first July.

The car you'll definitely own

Public transport is light, so a reliable car, registration and insurance belong in the arrival budget, not the month-two surprise.

The island premium

Everything crosses Bass Strait, so groceries, fuel and trades run slightly dearer than mainland equivalents – and family visits are flights or ferries.

Where the money comes back

Housing is the big one: the gap against Sydney or Melbourne funds the rest of the city's life. Short commutes give back time and fuel; school costs are unusually kind here for visa-holder families (Tasmania largely charges a modest levy rather than tuition – the detail lives in Schools & education); and the free entertainment is the mountain and the wilderness, which are the point of living here.

On the income side, public-health roles can salary-package part of your pay before tax – ask payroll on day one, because many international staff set it up months too late. How packaging, tax and superannuation work is national and lives in Pay & conditions.

The bottom line

Plan the bridge: temporary accommodation, a bond of about four weeks' rent, the car, the winter kit and the ferry crossing if you're bringing one over. It adds up to less than an east-coast move – and the people who price it before they fly are the ones who arrive calm.

Get today's numbers, and compare them to home

These are live and updated continuously, which is why we send you to them rather than competing with them. Put the city you are leaving in the other box.

Numbeo cost-of-living calculator (<https://www.numbeo.com/cost-of-living/>) – the most complete comparison tool, and the one most clinicians already use. Crowd-sourced, so read it as a ballpark rather than a quote.

Expatistan (<https://www.expatistan.com/cost-of-living>) – the same idea with a cleaner side-by-side. Worth running as a sanity check when Numbeo looks off.

Australian Bureau of Statistics (<https://www.abs.gov.au/statistics/economy/price-indexes-and-inflation>) – official, slower, and the one to trust on the direction of travel rather than any single price.

If what you find contradicts the judgement on this page, tell us. We would rather correct the page than defend it.

Food & the everyday

Hobart Guide · Chapter 8 of 9

Hobart grows what the mainland's best restaurants serve — the seafood, the cheese, the berries, the whisky — and much of it is sold a few kilometres from where it was made. The everyday food culture here runs on markets, the working waterfront and a supermarket you've never heard of.

The markets and the weekly shop

Salamanca Market fills the sandstone waterfront every Saturday — part produce market, part makers' fair, part social institution where you'll meet half the hospital. The Sunday Farm Gate Market is the cooks' market, growers only.

For the weekly shop: Woolworths and Coles run full-range stores across the city, ALDI covers the cheapest basket — and the local pride is Hill Street Grocer, the Tasmanian institution that turned the corner shop into something worth crossing town for.

Bring your bags

Single-use plastic bags are banned; locals keep a boot full of reusables and a cooler bag for the market run.

The farm-gate habit

Cherries in January, apples in April, oysters year-round — buying at the gate is how the city shops.

The scallop pie

Curried scallops in pastry: the state's bakery signature. Order it once, for citizenship.

The whisky is not a gimmick

Tasmanian single malts win world awards, and the distillery cellar door is the city's answer to the brewery tour.

Flavours of home, honestly

Here is the straight answer: the specialist range is smaller than the mainland's. Hobart has a modest spread of Asian and continental grocers and some halal outlets, and the big supermarkets carry a growing world-food range — but dedicated kosher and harder-to-find ingredients are often an online order. Most families work out a rhythm within a month: local for fresh, online for the specific.

The Migrant Resource Centre in Hobart is the fastest shortcut to your community's grocers, cooks and gatherings — worth a visit in week one, whatever your reason.

MONA — the museum that dragged Hobart's bar and restaurant scene into international company.

Eating and drinking out

Hobart eats far above its size: the waterfront seafood institutions around Constitution Dock, North Hobart's restaurant strip, and a bar scene MONA dragged into international company. Prices sit below Sydney; quality, on the produce's home ground, often doesn't.

The calendar does the rest. Dark Mofo's Winter Feast fills a wharf shed with fire and long tables each June, and the Taste of Summer runs across New Year as the Sydney-Hobart yacht fleet arrives — the city's big, bright fortnight.

The everyday, in one list

Saturday: Salamanca. Sunday: the Farm Gate, growers only.

Cheapest basket: ALDI; the local pride: Hill Street Grocer.

Specialist ingredients: the Hobart grocers first, online for the rest — the Migrant Resource Centre knows the shortcuts.

Bags in the boot, a cooler for the market, and a scallop pie at least once.

The mountain, the coast & the seasons

Hobart Guide · Chapter 9 of 9

The recruiting pitch for Hobart is a geography lesson: almost everything worth a weekend sits within an hour or two of the wards. This chapter is what people actually do with that — season by season, because in Hobart the seasons are not weather. They are the calendar.

Close to home

kunanyi's summit and foothill tracks are fifteen minutes up the mountain road, with the Organ Pipes track a local favourite. Bruny Island's oysters and sea cliffs are a twenty-minute drive and a car ferry from Kettering. Mount Field's waterfalls, including Russell Falls, are an hour out through World Heritage forest. And the Tasman Peninsula's Three Capes cliffs — with Port Arthur's sobering, essential history — are ninety minutes away.

A MOUNTAIN SUMMIT, FIFTEEN MINUTES FROM THE WARDS

Driving times from the city, to scale against each other. The marked row is the one no other Australian capital can match – a genuine alpine summit inside a quarter of an hour.

kunanyi's summit

Up the mountain road, with the Organ Pipes track a local favourite on the way down

~15 min

Bruny Island, via Kettering

Oysters, cheese and sea cliffs on the far side, and the Neck at dusk

~45 min + ferry

Mount Field

Russell Falls and the tall-tree forests, out through World Heritage country

~1 hour

The Tasman Peninsula

The Three Capes cliffs, and Port Arthur's sobering, essential history

~1 hr 30

Freycinet

Pink granite and Wineglass Bay – a long weekend rather than a Sunday

~2 hr 30

Indicative driving times. Winter mornings bring black ice on the mountain road, so the fifteen minutes becomes twenty-five and the locals' advice is worth taking.

The festival year

Winter · Dark Mofo

June belongs to MONA's midwinter festival – fire, art, the nude solstice swim and the Winter Feast. Hobart doesn't endure the dark; it throws it a party.

Summer · the finish line

The Sydney–Hobart fleet arrives between Christmas and New Year as the Taste of Summer fills the docks – the city's big, bright fortnight.

All year · MONA

The Museum of Old and New Art – provocative, subterranean, reached by ferry – single-handedly changed how the mainland sees Hobart. Locals get discounted entry and strong opinions.

Ten weekends, to start

kunanyi's summit by road, then down the Organ Pipes track

Bruny Island via the Kettering ferry – cheese, oysters, the Neck at dusk

Mount Field: Russell Falls and the tall-tree forests, an hour from town

Port Arthur and the Tasman Peninsula's sea cliffs

Salamanca Market, walked slowly, coffee in hand

A Coal River Valley cellar-door lunch

MONA by ferry, then a long lunch back at the wharf

Kingston Beach at golden hour

Dark Mofo's Winter Feast, booked the week tickets open

Freycinet and Wineglass Bay, on a long weekend

That's the guide

Nine chapters on Hobart; the rest of the island – Launceston, the north-west coast, the wild west – lives in the Tasmania guide, and everything national in Moving to Australia. When you're ready to talk about real roles here, we're easy to reach – and there's no pipeline waiting on the other end of the call.