Geelong

Wadawurrung Country

A relocation guide for healthcare professionals and their families. The work, the neighbourhoods, the money and the weekends in Geelong.

A bay city by the coast. Melbourne an hour away.

Geelong is Victoria's second city, built around the calm blue curve of Corio Bay, with the only tertiary hospital in the state outside Melbourne and the Great Ocean Road beginning just down the road. It gives clinicians genuine tertiary work, a commute measured in minutes and a coastline that becomes part of an ordinary week, with Melbourne an easy hour away whenever you want it.

Why clinicians choose Geelong

Most people who move here are choosing a hospital they can genuinely get to know, a coastline at the end of the street, and Melbourne close enough to enjoy without living in it.

If you're looking for the scale and buzz of a city of five million, Geelong may not be it. But if you're drawn to tertiary-level work, a short commute and the beach on a Tuesday evening, it could be a wonderful choice.

Geelong sits on Corio Bay about 75 kilometres south-west of Melbourne. It grew wealthy on wool in the nineteenth century, became one of Victoria's great manufacturing centres in the twentieth, and over the last fifteen years has reinvented itself around health, education and the public sector. Today it is a relaxed, confident city of around 295,000 people with a rebuilt waterfront, a lively café strip and two university campuses.

For clinicians the proposition is specific. The region's principal referral hospital is the only tertiary hospital in Victoria based outside metropolitan Melbourne, serving a primary catchment of around 350,000 people and more for some specialist services. That means a case mix much closer to a metropolitan teaching hospital than a typical regional posting, in a city where most suburbs are ten to twenty minutes from work.

Geelong is also classed as regional for skilled-migration purposes, which can open pathways that Melbourne itself does not offer. It is worth asking a registered migration agent how that applies to your situation.

WHAT YOU GAIN

Tertiary work, regional pace

Genuine case complexity and subspecialty exposure, with a commute that rarely tops twenty minutes.

Seniority sooner

Specialist teams are smaller than in a Melbourne teaching hospital, so your voice and your name are on decisions earlier.

Room to live

Housing costs noticeably less than Melbourne, so a family home with a garden is a realistic goal.

The coast as an everyday thing

The Bellarine Peninsula and the start of the Great Ocean Road sit inside your weekday radius, not just your holidays.

GOOD TO KNOW

A close-knit specialist bench

Your specialty will be a team rather than a large department. Ask at interview how many colleagues sit alongside you.

Melbourne for the rarest cases

A small number of highly specialised cases go to Melbourne services an hour away; most work is managed locally.

A breezy city

Geelong catches the wind off the bay and Bass Strait. Locals keep a jacket in the car and a backup plan for the beach.

Busy summer beaches

From Boxing Day to late January, half of Melbourne heads for the Bellarine and Surf Coast. Locals simply go early.

i

Weighing up your options?

People often compare Geelong with Melbourne, an hour away, for its depth of subspecialty teams; with Newcastle or the Gold Coast, for a similar coastal second-city lifestyle; and with smaller regional Victorian cities for even more space. Geelong usually offers the best balance of tertiary work, coast and access to a capital. We are always happy to talk any of them through.

Geelong at a glance

Geelong is easiest to understand as a bay city that has turned to face the water again. The waterfront, the breeze and the way the suburbs spread all follow from Corio Bay.

The city centre sits on the southern shore of Corio Bay, the western arm of Port Phillip. The Barwon River winds through the southern suburbs before reaching the sea at Barwon Heads, the Bellarine Peninsula stretches away to the east, and the granite peaks of the You Yangs rise on the skyline to the north. The surf coast begins at Torquay, twenty-five minutes south.

In practice, the inner suburbs and the waterfront are compact and easy to walk, the newest housing is growing south towards Armstrong Creek, and the Bellarine towns give you beach life with a short drive into work.

Healthcare and work in Geelong

Geelong's clinical offer is larger than its population suggests, for one simple reason: its main hospital is the only tertiary centre in Victoria outside Melbourne.

The region's principal referral hospital is a large public teaching hospital close to the city centre and the waterfront. It is the largest hospital in regional Victoria and the only one outside Melbourne with tertiary designation, providing emergency, intensive care, cardiac, cancer, maternity, paediatric, mental health and a broad range of specialist surgical and medical services.

Behind it sits a network of smaller hospitals and community health services across the Surf Coast, the Otways, Colac and the Bellarine, all referring inward for specialist and complex care. A new women's and children's hospital is being built in the city, a sign of how much the region is investing in its health services. Private hospitals and specialist imaging practices also operate in Geelong, giving clinicians a real choice of settings.

Regional Victoria's only tertiary imaging service, closer to a metropolitan department than a typical regional one, with cross-training actively supported.

VISIBILITY

Progression

Smaller specialist teams mean responsibility, leadership and senior roles tend to arrive earlier than in a large city.

Registration is national through Ahpra, but public-sector pay is set by Victorian enterprise agreements for each profession, so the same role can sit on a different scale in another state. In the private sector, pay is negotiated individually. We are always happy to explain how a specific role is graded before you decide anything.

Imaging is a particular strength of the regional service

Overseas-trained clinicians are a familiar and welcome part of the team

What to ask at interview

- ☐ How does the tertiary designation shape my day-to-day caseload?
- ☐ Which cases, if any, go to a Melbourne subspecialty service, and how involved do I stay?
- ☐ How many colleagues sit alongside me in my specialty specifically?
- ☐ What is the on-call pattern, and how often is it called upon?
- ☐ Which modalities or subspecialties would I be expected to cover?
- ☐ What CPD time and funding is available, including travel to Melbourne for courses?
- ☐ Is there a teaching component through Deakin, and how is it supported?

Care that is personal: in a regional service you often see patients through their whole journey

Where to live in Geelong

Geelong is compact enough that most commutes stay under twenty minutes, so you can choose on lifestyle rather than logistics. The real decision is inner city, the growing south, or the Bellarine.

~5-10 MIN · CAFÉS

Newtown & Geelong West

Leafy and established, with Pakington Street's cafés and shops on the doorstep. Lovely for walking to dinner; homes here are more compact for the money.

~10-15 MIN · VALUE

Herne Hill & Hamlyn Heights

A similar character a little further out, with more family-sized blocks and easy access to the city.

~10-15 MIN · FAMILIES

Highton & Wandana Heights

Established, green and family-friendly, close to well-regarded schools and the Barwon River trails.

~10-15 MIN · RIVER

Belmont & Grovedale

Popular southern suburbs near the Barwon River and the Waurin Ponds shopping and university precinct.

~20-25 MIN · NEWER HOMES

Armstrong Creek

The city's major growth area, with new, warm, well-insulated family homes, new schools and parks, and Torquay close by.

~25-35 MIN · SURF BEACHES

Ocean Grove & Barwon Heads

Relaxed beach towns at the mouth of the Barwon River, increasingly sought after by families who want the coast every day.

~20-35 MIN · THE BELLARINE

Drysdale, Leopold & Portarlington

Village life on the calmer bay side of the peninsula, among vineyards and farm gates.

~15-20 MIN · NORTH

Lara, Corio & Norlane

The city's more affordable northern suburbs, close to the ring road, the You Yangs and the Melbourne freeway, with ongoing renewal.

Almost everyone we help move here rents for six to twelve months before buying. It gives you time to learn which part of the city suits your family, your shifts and your weekends. Rentals on the Bellarine are most in demand over summer, so if you are drawn to the coast it helps to arrive with something secured for your first month.

Heritage shopfronts and independent shops in central Geelong

Eastern Beach, an easy walk or ride from the inner suburbs

Practical, in order

- ☐ Confirm your work site before you choose a suburb; most are close to the city centre, but some services are further out.
- ☐ Decide between inner city, the growing south, or the Bellarine.
- ☐ Rent for the first six to twelve months, and secure something before you fly.
- ☐ Check the school zone at the exact address using Find My School.
- ☐ If the Bellarine appeals, drive the commute at your real start time, ideally on a summer weekday.

Getting around Geelong

Most trips across Geelong take ten to twenty minutes, and it is the best train-connected regional city in Victoria, with Melbourne about an hour away.

A car makes life easier, especially at weekends, when the Bellarine, the Great Ocean Road and the wine regions are calling. But if you live centrally and work near the city centre, the train and buses can genuinely cover daily life, and many households here manage happily with one car rather than two. Parking is far easier than in Melbourne, and often free outside the city core.

Overseas licence holders can drive on their licence for a period after arriving, and convert to a Victorian licence through VicRoads if they stay longer than six months. Australians drive on the left.

Tasmania from your doorstep

The Spirit of Tasmania now sails from Geelong to Devonport, with overnight crossings year-round and day sailings in the warmer months. Two new, larger ships are joining the route. Driving your own car onto the ferry for a Tasmanian holiday is a local favourite.

Flinders Street Station in Melbourne, about an hour from Geelong by train or freeway

What it costs to live here

Think of Geelong as Melbourne prices for everyday life, with a noticeably more affordable roof over your head. Housing is where the difference really shows.

Groceries, fuel, insurance, power, phone and internet all sit close to Melbourne levels; Australia is largely a national market for these, and Geelong is big enough to have real competition between the major supermarkets. The change you will feel is in housing: renting or buying here costs materially less than in Melbourne, and Sydney is in a different league again.

What that means in practice is space. A family home with a garden, ten to twenty minutes from work, is a realistic goal on a clinical income in Geelong in a way it increasingly is not in the capital. Parking is easier and often free, and a shorter commute saves both time and fuel.

Where a month goes

Typical proportions for a household on a mid-range budget, not amounts. Housing is the biggest line, and it is where Geelong compares most favourably with Melbourne.

Worth planning for

- ✓ Coastal accommodation in summer. The Bellarine and Surf Coast see holiday pricing from Boxing Day to late January, worth knowing if you are house-hunting then.
- ✓ A car for weekends. The coast and wine country are best reached by car, so budget for one even if you commute by train.
- ✓ Winter warmth. Ask about insulation, heating and draught-proofing; a warm, efficient home keeps winter bills comfortable.
- ✓ The first-year set-up costs: visas and registration, flights, a rental bond, furniture and a car. These are the same wherever you land in Australia.

Life on the bay: the waterfront and marinas are free to enjoy every day

IN SHORT

- ✓ Everyday costs are close to Melbourne's; housing is where Geelong gives you more room.
- ✓ A family home with a garden and a short commute is a realistic goal here.
- ✓ Check current listings for the suburbs you like, and ask us how a role is graded before you budget.

SOPHIE'S INSIGHTS

What I tell people about Geelong

Geelong is the city I suggest when someone wants real, tertiary-level work but doesn't want the commute and the cost that come with a capital. The hospital here gives you a case mix you would normally travel to Melbourne for, and a team small enough that people know your name within weeks.

What I love about it is how naturally the coast becomes part of everyday life. People tell me about swimming at Eastern Beach after a shift, Saturday mornings on Pako and Sunday drives down the Great Ocean Road, and Melbourne is still there for a concert or a match whenever you want it. If you're drawn to that balance, I'd encourage you to come and take a look.

Around Geelong

Geelong is not just near the coast; it is where the coast starts. Within a few hours you have the Great Ocean Road, Melbourne, wine and spa country, the Victorian Alps and even Tasmania by sea.

The Great Ocean Road begins at Torquay and runs for over two hundred kilometres along the Southern Ocean: surf beaches, the café town of Lorne, rainforest and waterfalls in the Otways behind Apollo Bay, koalas in the trees at Kennett River and, finally, the limestone stacks of the Twelve Apostles. From Geelong it is a long day trip, or better still an overnight, and most people do it many times.

Melbourne is an hour up the freeway or the train line: the restaurants and laneways, the MCG, the galleries and the concerts are all an easy day or evening out. In winter, the Victorian Alps make a wonderful snow trip, and the Spirit of Tasmania sails from Geelong itself, so a Tasmanian road trip starts with a night on the ferry.

Victorian children start school in Prep, the year they turn five by the end of April, then move through primary school (Prep to Year 6) and secondary school (Years 7 to 12), finishing with the Victorian Certificate of Education (VCE) or the VCE Vocational Major. The school year runs from late January to December in four terms.

Most children attend government schools, which allocate places by address through school zones. Alongside them are Catholic schools, with modest fees, and independent schools. Geelong has some long-established independent schools, including Geelong Grammar School at Corio and The Geelong College in Newtown, as well as Christian, Lutheran and international colleges across the city.

Choosing a school

- ☐ Check the school zone at the exact address before you sign a lease, using the Victorian Government's Find My School tool.
- ☐ Visit, or ask for a video call. Principals here are used to international families and are happy to talk.
- ☐ Ask about English as an Additional Language support and how new arrivals are welcomed.
- ☐ Uniforms are bought from the school's uniform shop or its appointed supplier; several Geelong uniform stores supply many schools at once.

School fees on a temporary visa

Victoria generally does not charge tuition fees at government schools for the children of skilled temporary visa holders, such as the subclass 482 and 494, though some other temporary visas do pay. Check your exact visa with the Victorian Department of Education's International Education Division before you enrol.

Six steps, and someone beside you for each one

Moving country is a sequence of decisions. We take them with you in order, so you are never solving step five before step two is done.

STEP 1

Discovery call

A relaxed conversation about your profession, your family and what you want from a move. No forms, no pressure.

STEP 2

Eligibility & registration

We map your route to Ahpra registration and help you gather the evidence the regulator will ask for.

STEP 3

Opportunities & interviews

Roles matched to where you want to live and how you like to work, with honest briefings before every interview.

STEP 4

Offer & decision support

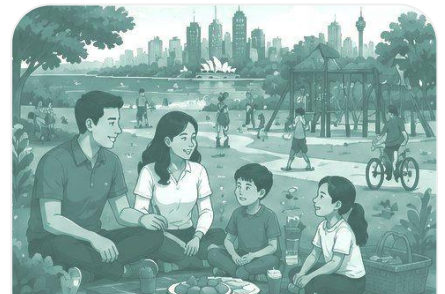

We help you read the offer properly: pay step, relocation support, roster and what the team is really like.

STEP 5

Visa & relocation guidance

Practical guidance on visas, shipping, pets, schools and the first weeks, so nothing arrives as a surprise.

STEP 6

Settling in

We stay in touch after you land, from your first week on the ward to your first winter.

— READY TO EXPLORE OPPORTUNITIES?

Picture yourself in Geelong. Then let's make it real.

Tell us what you do and where you would like to live. We will come back with roles that fit, a clear view of the registration route, and time to answer every question.
